Introduction to BayMUN

What is BayMUN?

- BayMUN is an academic representation initiated to simulate the existing model of united nations, where students employ roles of delegates from various countries.
- It pushes the characteristics of leadership, collaboration, problem-solving, and public speaking to the forefront of the students' experience.
- An annual educational and enjoyable conference centered around solving pressing global matters in a stimulating environment.
- Bahrain's most prestigious and experienced MUN.
- Accredited by The Hauge International Model United Nations (THIMUN).

Conference Rules

In council rules:

- All devices must remain silent or turned off, unless instructed otherwise by chairpersons.
- Foul language, rude gestures, and disruption within the council is strictly forbidden.
- It is prohibited to have side conversations.
- Informal language is not allowed.
- Delegates must maintain a professional demeanor, alongside treating everyone with respect at all times.
- Eating and drinking other than the water provided is strictly prohibited.

Delegate rules:

- The use of personal pronouns is prohibited-- with some exceptions.
- Delegates must rise to speak.
- To get permission to speak, delegates must raise their placards.
- Delegates must comply to the rules of the chairpersons, including being asked to yield the floor to someone else or raising their placards.

Should these rules be strongly violated, the BayMUN team may take appropriate action.

Delegate Rights

As a delegate you are entitled to various rights that determine and shape your experience:

1) Right to freedom of speech/expression:

- Liberty to participate fully in discussion without being silenced.
- Delegates are entitled to openly express ideas and opinions through resolutions and debates without retribution or fear of discrimination.
- They must remain respectful and civil under any circumstance. If this is violated, chairs are permitted to issue warnings.

2) Right to have personal boundaries respected:

- Physical and Communicative boundaries must not be breached.
- In any case of neglect, delegates must report it for review immediately.
- Respect and professionalism should be displayed by fellow delegates, and conference staff accordingly.

3) Right to have all inquiries, ideas, and opinions respected and heard:

- Chairs and delegates must cooperate and listen to one another, regardless of background or experience.
- All complaints or concerns with any aspect of the conference should be raised without fear of retaliation.

Should these rights be strongly violated, the BayMUN team may take appropriate action.

Delegate Responsibilities

Delegates also have a certain responsibility to uphold in this conference, such include:

1) Responsibility to collaborate and network with fellow delegates and conference staff:

- Delegates are expected to form consensuses on resolutions, participate in committee sessions, and engage in discussions.
- They are obligated to actively participate in committee work.

2) Responsibility to abide by code of conduct, and follow all rules and procedures of conference:

- Delegates will be held accountable through the form of warnings or clips if any regulations are violated.

3) Responsibility to be adequately prepared and informed prior to the conference:

- Delegates must be moderately informed about council issues and make informed decisions through such.
- Opening speeches are expected to be completed in advance to ensure smooth procedure.

Should these responsibilities be strongly violated, the BayMUN team may take appropriate action.

Warning System

Verbal Warning

Verbal warnings can be given out by chairs, runners, and admin team members for any minor or major violations. Three verbal warnings lead to an official warning .

Official Warning

Formal warning that advises delegates to improve their behaviour as their actions result in consequences. Delegates with three official warnings will be clipped.

Clipping System

- Clips are given by the Head of Security, Secretary General, and Director to delegates who directly violate the files, (dress code violation, use of foul language or behaviour, etc.)
- One Clip leads to a delegate not being eligible for an award.
- Two Clips put the delegate at risk of being kicked out of the conference.
- Three Clips result in the delegate being escorted out of the conference and put on the blacklist.

Dress Code

BayMUN attendees are expected to represent the fact that United Nations conferences are formal forums for discussing important international crises, they do this by dressing modestly and professionally. The professional dress code for BayMUN must be followed by all attendees, MUN directors, and chaperones. Failure to comply with the code of conduct will result in delegates being asked to leave the conference; and they can only return if they are dressed appropriately.

The requirements are as follow:

Ladies:

- Heels must not be higher than 2 inches and cannot be open toed.
- Sleeves must cover the upper arm halfway.
- Cutout, sheer, and sleeveless tops are not permitted.
- The hemline of formal dresses and skirts should fall below the knees and shouldn't be too tightly fitted.
- Can dress in colourful, non-flashy apparel.

Gentlemen:

- At all times, suits and ties are required.
- When speaking, blazers and suit jackets are required.
- No turtle necks allowed.

General:

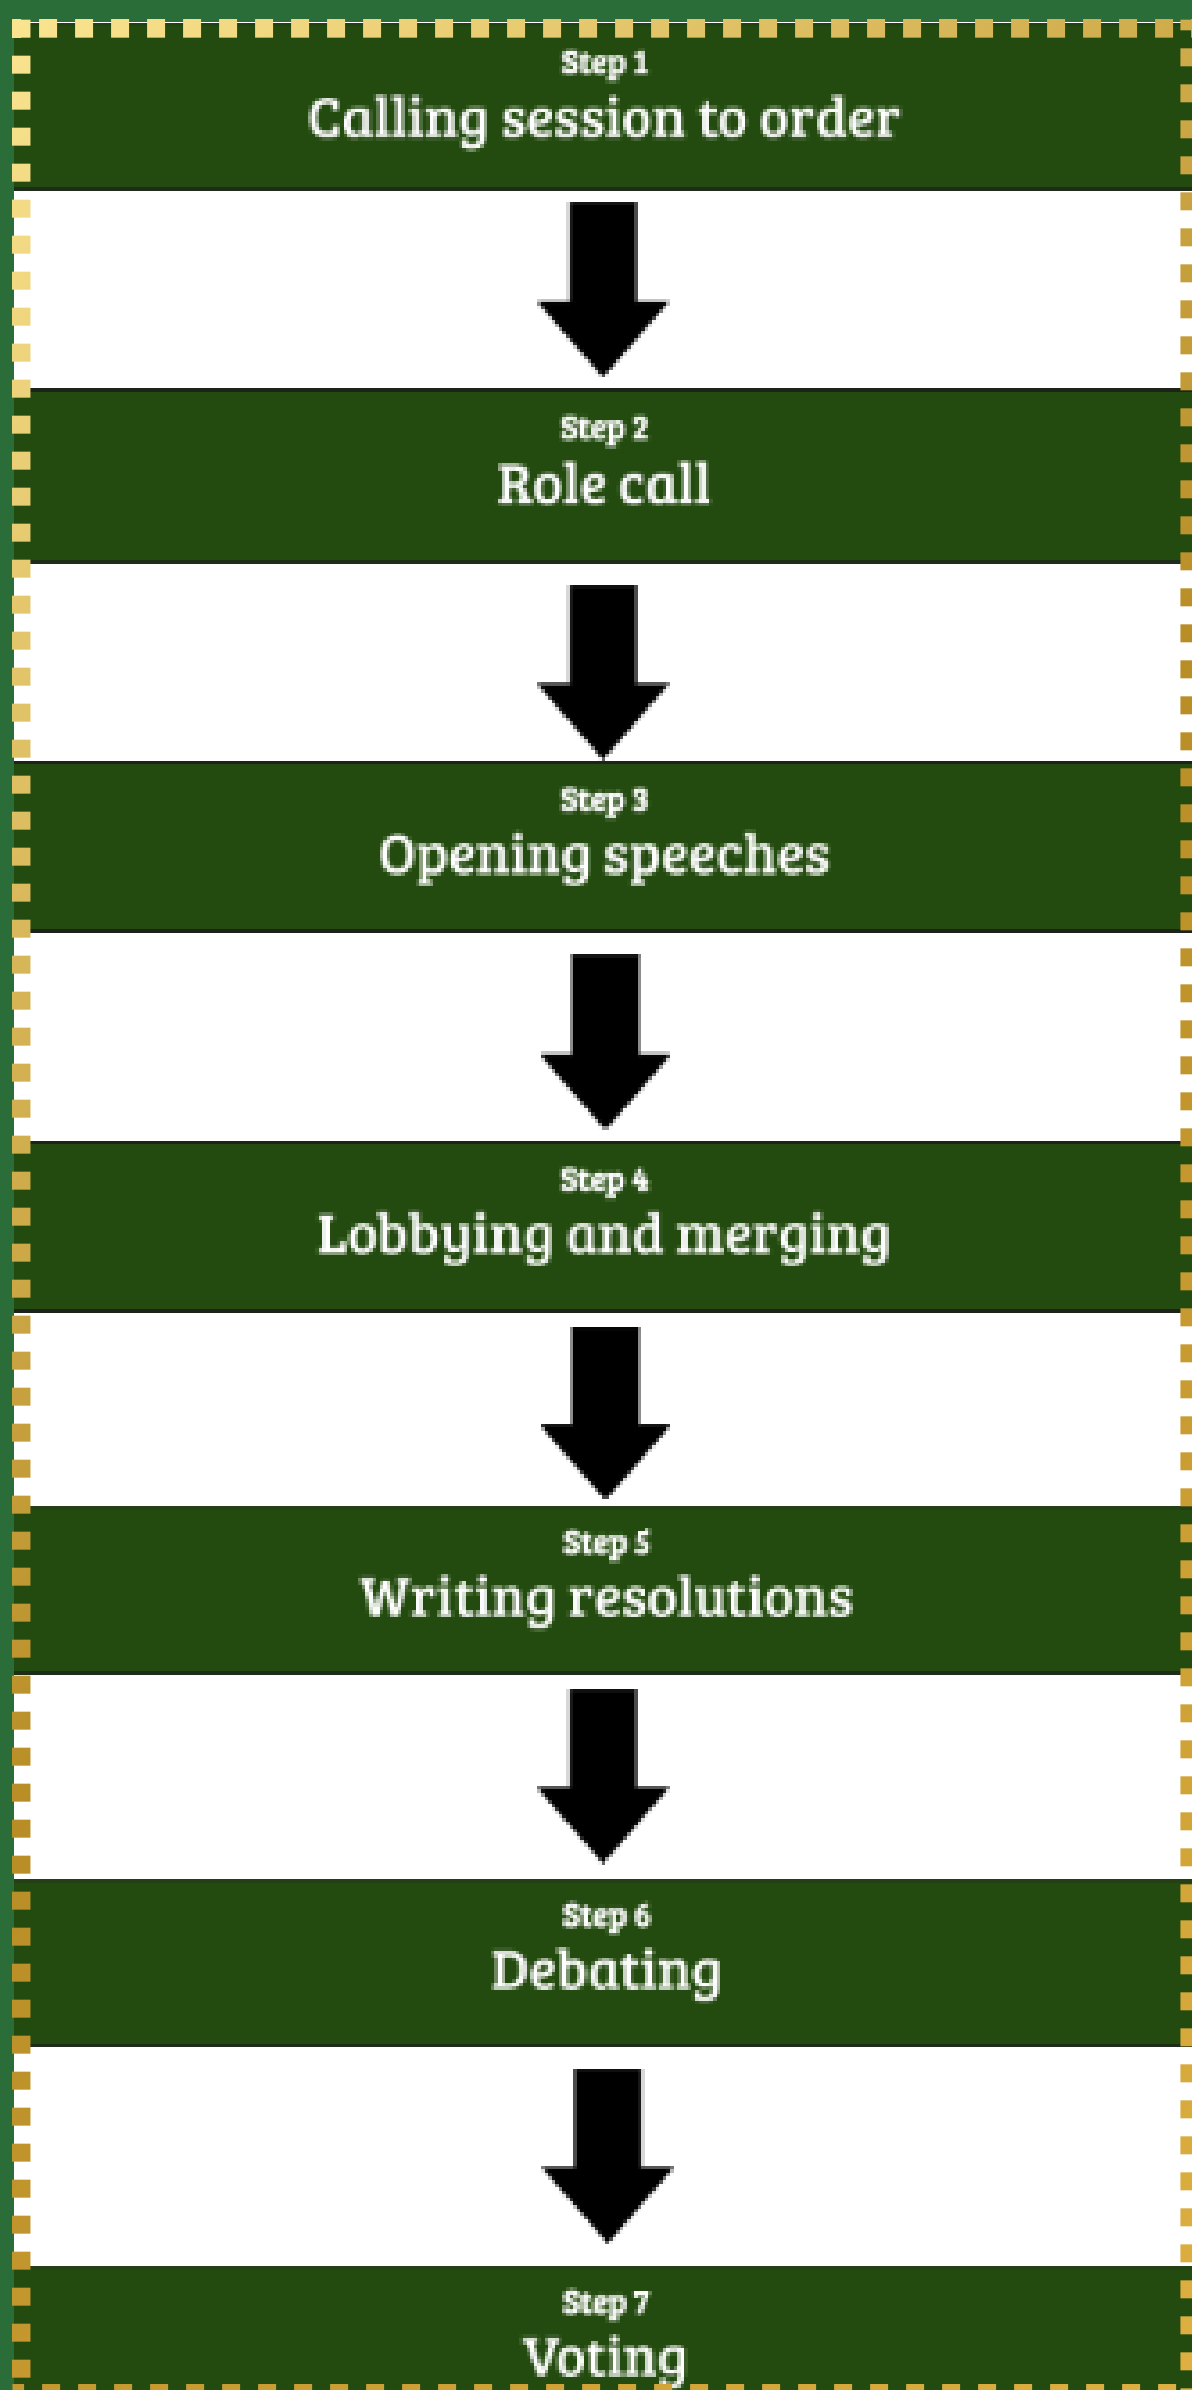

- No colorful socks.
- No sneakers.
- Attendees should stick to neutral and earth-toned outfits.

Procedures

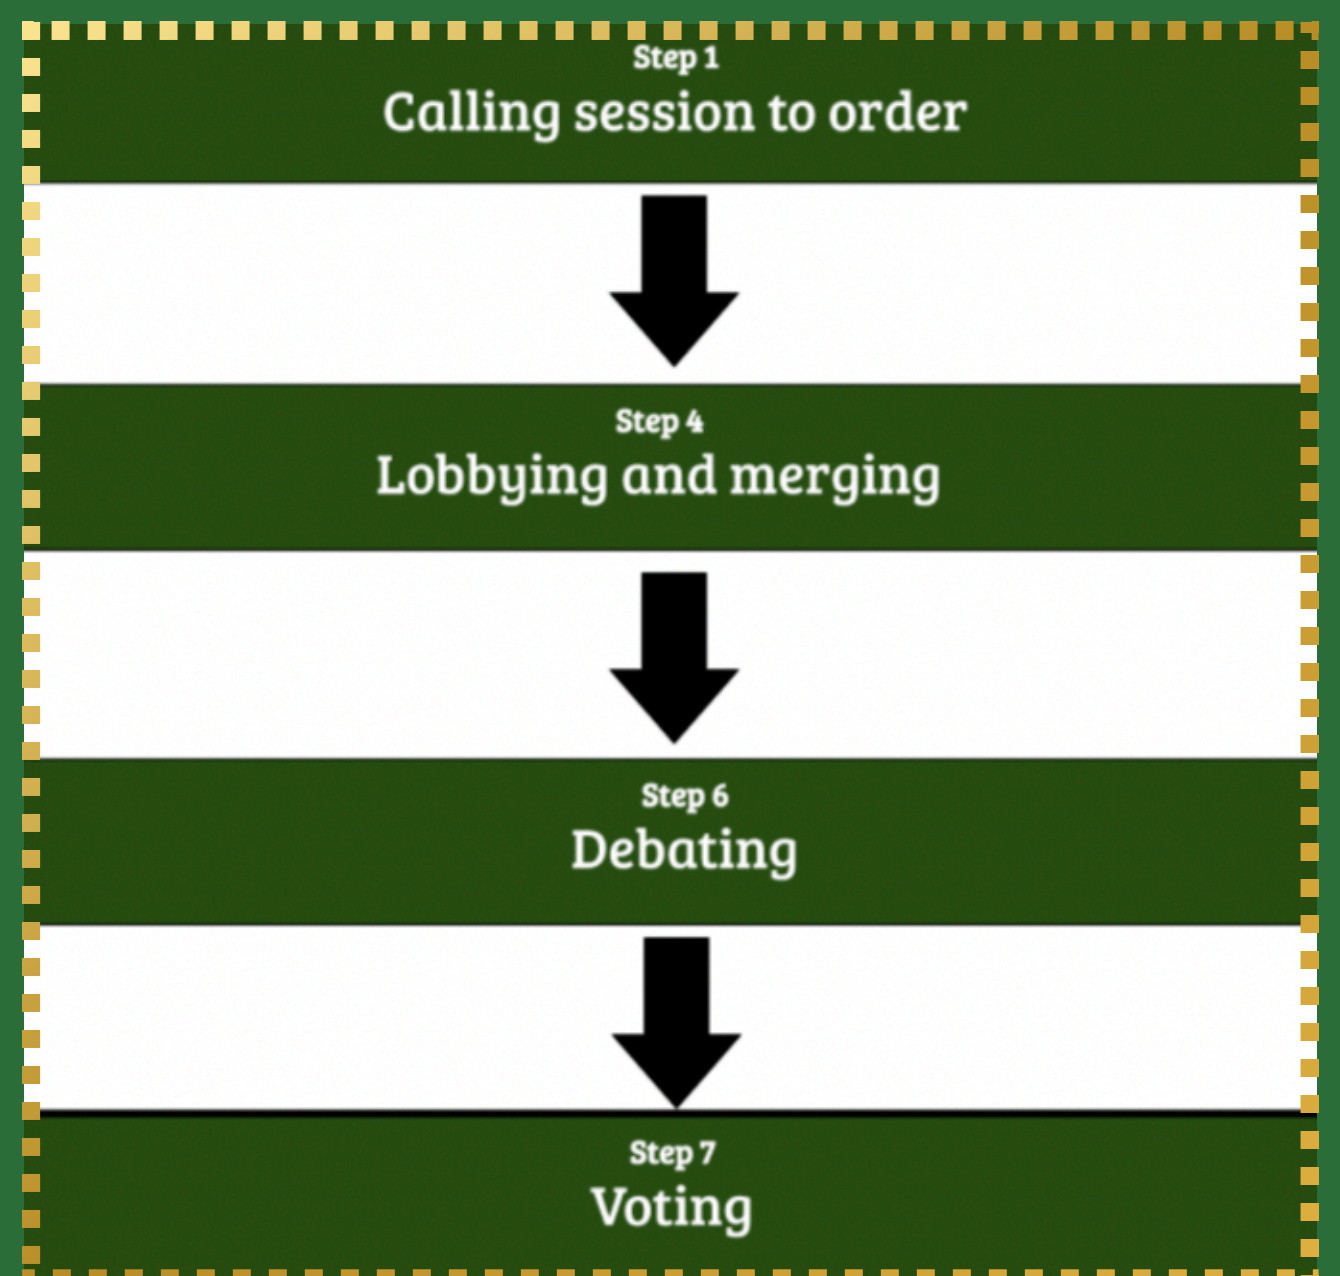

BayMUN follows certain procedures similar to those used by the United Nations in their conferences.

General Assembly Specialized Councils

Security Council

This procedure is similar to that of the general one, except opening speeches are not included, and clauses are debated on (instead of resolutions).

On the second day of the conference, there will be no opening speeches as the delegates would have read them on the first day.

Opening Speeches

- Make it concise and straight to the point.
- Read it aloud to a friend prior to the conference to practice.
- Compile useful research to understand the content of your speech.
- Speak confidently and don't rush your speech.
- Use moderate hand gestures to express confidence and overall make your speech more compelling.
- Make eye contact.
- Stick to the time limits (1 minute).
- Tackle the issues at hand from your nations point of view.

Country: United Kingdom

Council: ECOSOC

Mister/Madame Chairperson, fellow delegates, honored guests:

With the set milestones reached and the first steps towards a bright and prosperous future taken with great success, it is time once again to gaze forward and set goals for yet another stage of development. This next stage is the stage of advancement, where practices already set into place should be improved on, and any remaining forms of corruption should be eliminated completely.

Globalization and development should be promoted, and the UN plays a major role in ensuring that this occurs. Amidst all this, we should not lose sight of certain vital things. The UK respects different cultures and believes that they should be embraced. Corrupt practices should be singled out and extinguished.

The UK believes that it plays a major role in the world economy of today. It believes that through cooperation and understanding, international trade disputes can be resolved and debt problems, especially in developing countries, can be cleared. It also believes that the market economy-based global financial system is heading the world economy in the right direction. Finally, the UK also believes that women's rights and status should continue to escalate in order to ensure a fair and balanced global society.

Position Papers

If allocated to a general assembly council, each delegate must prepare a position paper. The submission of this paper will determine the delegates' eligibility for an award.

- For each issue, a position paper should range from roughly 300 to 600 words
- Your position paper outlines your country's stance on the issue of discussion

Important topics that should be discussed:

The topic and its history must be introduced by the delegates at the outset.

The role of the United Nations in this matter must then be discussed. Delegates must then state the nation's position on the particular issue.

Finally, they must offer potential solutions to this problem.

How to get your position paper to stand out:

- Facts and statistics to back your argument.
- Understand the underlying information of the issue.
- Focus on your country's opinion, rather than personal opinion.
- Cite all sources to avoid any doubt on the credibility of your information

Research Methods:

Read the guidelines carefully and take down necessary notes.

Search for information on your nation, with an emphasis on significant recent political and economic developments that are relevant to the subject at hand.

Consider the list of council members to learn more about the other nations, and identify your allies and adversaries.

Write a few pertinent treaties and delicate subjects or errors other nations have made.

View recent articles and highlight important ideas.

Council: Human Rights

Issue: Preventing and responding to anti-Muslim hate crimes

Country: Niger

Delegate: Noora Alhashimi

Hate crimes are essentially criminal acts driven by prejudice, hate, and fear towards a victim's identity and background. An abundance of these incidents is powered by hatred towards religion, like Islam. Anti-Muslim hate crimes remain present to this day, with thousands of people becoming victims of these hate driven offenses. As for Niger, it protects the freedom of religious practices that take place in the country. Due to this, hate crimes against Muslim are scarce in Niger and rarely take place, as interfaith relations are positive and considered impressive.

The republic of Niger has gone to the necessary extents to ensure that these hate crimes will not continue. In 1996, the Nigerian government seized action to ban religious groups that were suspected of not tolerating other religions. Niger firmly believes that the acceptance of different religions and beliefs is crucial to guarantee peace between different faiths. This can greatly help in preventing hate crimes pointed at Muslims, because anti Muslims will not have a reason to detest Muslims and therefore will not resort to committing these crimes. Despite the presence of extremist groups, Niger recognizes that the targeted victims in Anti Muslim hate crimes are normally innocent and harmless people, and it will not endure such appalling actions. The republic of Niger identifies with its people's rights, which includes the right to practice their preferred religion without the fear of being suddenly attacked.

Additionally, the annual Anti Defamation League meeting of 2009 revealed that the UN is striving to ensure that laws against intolerance are enforced throughout the world. On a more distinctive note, the UN has contributed to resolving this issue by adding the International Convention on the Elimination of ALL Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, which requires states to prevent religion based discrimination and take the farthest measures to oppose religious intolerance, thus implying that the prejudice against certain religions can justly be discrimination. Niger has been following these obligations without hesitation beginning with the 1996 incident, and is continuing to watch over its country's maintained religious stability.

Moreover, the republic of Niger is open to resolutions that centralize around tolerating diverse religion in hopes to demolish the hatred between religions, as the country supports the idea of having its people safely practice their beliefs and religions. Although anti Muslim hate crimes are unusual in Niger, a successful solution must be reached to certify its citizen's lasting safety and to ensure that such hate motivated actions are taken care of for good. Niger also recognizes that negatively effective extremist Islamic groups will ultimately have to be combatted to maintain order and peace, and it is willing to go all appropriate extents to regain amity. Furthermore, the republic of Niger will accept resolutions that abide by defeating hate crimes

Points and Motions

What are Points and Motions?

- A motion is a formal proposal by a delegate to carry out a certain duty at a meeting. (A motion is only carried out after it is approved by the chairpersons)
- A point can be made by a delegate through raising his or her placard and outlining the issue or making a proposal. Although there is no voting on points, a chairperson has the authority to reject them if they are deemed harmful or unneeded.

Motions

- Motion to extend the debate
- Motion to move to the previous question
- Motion to reconsider a resolution
- Motion to withdraw a resolution
- Motion to refer a resolution to another forum
- Motion to adjourn the debate
- Objection to the main motion

Points

- Point of personal privilege
- Point of parliamentary inquiry
- Point of information to the speaker
- Point of information to the chair
- Point of order

For and Against Speeches

Once resolutions are submitted, delegates will have the opportunity to deliver a for or against speech, in which they will argue for either a resolution to pass, or for a resolution not to pass.

Tips for your speech:

- Your speech shouldn't be more than two minutes long.
- Use quotes from the resolution to convince delegates.
- Focus on undeniable facts and statistics.
- Emphasize the strengths/weaknesses of the resolution.
- Speak confidently and use hand gestures.

Phrases to use:

Beginning of speech: "The delegate of ... strongly agrees/opposes this resolution since ..."

End of speech: "based on this the delegate wishes that the council comes to an agreement to pass it/strike it out."

Amendments

Amendments are changes that are made to operative clauses or subclauses, including deletions, additions, or corrections. These changes may be communicated to the chair in a note that states the nation of the delegate and the suggested modification.

The chairpersons will allocate a time for both supporters and opponents of the amendment to speak once it has been introduced and described by the submitter.

Amendment example:

Amendment to the delegate of Canada, submitted by the delegate of USA

Replaces subclasses 3(A) : Requests developing countries to contribute 5% of overall budget collectively. Allocated distribution will be decided on the UND panel

Veto power (Security Council):

Five permanent members of the Security Council have veto power: China, France, Russia, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

The permanent members have the ability to veto any proposed council resolution, preventing its passage.

To assess how a proposed resolution may affect their interests, delegates from veto-wielding nations must be familiar with their own national interests. The ability to assess how much they are willing to compromise depends on these representatives' knowledge of their nation's position on the topic.

Diplomatic Notes

Delegates require a means of communication to decide their viewpoints and collaborate with one another on positions, in addition to the regular Model United Nations procedures, which included speeches, debates, questions, and taking notes. This is accomplished by using diplomatic notes, which enable delegates to converse by posing questions and receiving responses. These notes keep participants from causing distractions during the debate, maintaining the formal atmosphere.

Things to keep in mind:

- Notes should revolve around the debate.
- The administrative staff reads the diplomatic notes before handing them to the person to whom they are addressed in order to make sure they are appropriate.
- Undiplomatic comments can lead to delegates' suspension from the conference.
- During voting procedures, note passing is suspended.
- Diplomatic notes must be written in English.

Resolutions

Resolutions make up the concluding moments of the conference and are the MUN's primary focus. Representatives propose solutions to their debated issues.

A standard resolution consists of:

1) Heading:

- Four lines located above the main body of the resolution.
- Includes the name of the council, issue, the main submitter, and co-submitters, in that specific order.

2) Body:

- Written in the form of a long, coherent sentence divided into clauses and sub-clauses.
- Each clause deals with a certain aspect of the problem.
- Perambulatory clauses come first; they deal with background information including the problem addressed, actions taken in the past, the purpose of the resolution, and reasons for taking action in the operative clauses.
- The next section contains numbered operative clauses that suggest actions that should be taken by the UN to resolve the problem, justifying the 'who' and 'how' involved in implementing the suggested actions.

Sample Resolution:

Council: United Nations Human Rights Council (UNHRC)

Issue: The Systemic Corruption within the Lebanese Government

Main Submitter: Cuba

Co-Submitters: Kenya, Lebanon, Indonesia, Iraq

- Alarmed by the high number of 210 deaths and 7500 injuries reported,
